Who is considered a parent

Tax filing status and which dependents were claimed as exemptions on tax returns is not used to determine which parents and siblings should be included in the household.

If your parent was never married and does not live with your other legal parent, or if your parent is widowed and not remarried, answer the questions about that parent.

If your legal parents (biological, adoptive, or as determined by the state [for example, if the parent is listed on the birth certificate]) are not married to each other and live together, select Unmarried and both parents living together and provide information about both of them regardless of their gender. Do not include any person who is not married to your parent and who is not a legal or biological parent.

If your legal parents are married, select Married or remarried. If your legal parents are divorced but living together, select Unmarried and both parents living together. If your legal parents are separated but living together, select Married or remarried, not Divorced or separated.

If your parents are divorced or separated, answer the questions about the parent you lived with more during the past 12 months. (If you did not live with one parent more than the other, give answers about the parent who provided more financial support during the past 12 months or during the most recent year that you actually received support from a parent.) If this parent is remarried as of today, answer the questions about that parent and your stepparent.

If your widowed parent is remarried as of today, answer the questions about that parent and your stepparent.

Which siblings should be included

In addition to the instructions on page 1, the following should be considered when figuring out who is a member of the student's household. Siblings need not live in the home. Include unborn children who will receive more than half support from the parent(s) from birth to the end of the school year. Foster children are not included for financial aid purposes.
